PRINCE2[®]

for senior managers

two to three hour event

Good project management is good business. If projects fail, or only partially succeed, the impacts are always business impacts. PRINCE2 provides a pragmatic, sensible approach to managing projects. The good news is, it really does work.

an outline

This The Inspirandum briefing is for senior managers (not necessarily at director level) who need to understand the nature of the PRINCE2 Project Management method and why it is important for their organisation. The briefing is relevant for the public sector as well as the private sector.

Good project management is good business. If a project fails, what happens? There is lost money, lost business opportunity and often staff are demotivated which then hurts the organisation still further. This 'business' argument holds good equally well in the public sector. In the private sector, if money is wasted, then that is lost profit. The mechanism in the public sector is exactly the same only this time the 'bottom line' it is less service being delivered for the allocated budget.

PRINCE2 is a 'best practice' approach to project management. But adopting it in the organisation is not just something for Project Managers; it involves more senior managers too. This is exactly the same as a manager being responsible for a department - it is not just something they leave to the staff. The PRINCE2 Boardroom Briefing explains what the method is and how it can be a very real help with projects, including how it is structured to help avoid the well known causes of project failure. It also looks at the organisational implications for adopting the method. The session normally includes a ten minute practical exercise to give a flavour of just how effective its approach is.

The briefing is for senior managers who want to know what PRINCE2 is about, how it works, why it works and why it is important to the business. It is not sufficient for those who will serve as members of Project Boards. Please see our specific courses for Project Board members to meet that need.

Inspirandum's clear delivery style makes this event effective where those attending have English as a second language. We work worldwide with English speaking audiences or with translation.

The briefing is designed for 'in company' delivery so that it can be geared to your own projects and organisational characteristics. There is a short time for discussion so that the practicalities of applying PRINCE2 to your particular organisation and types of project can be examined, but the speaker will always be happy to stay on after the session to discuss any more detail with those who have other questions.

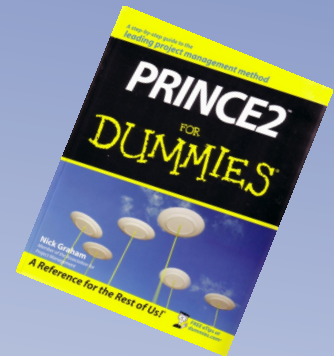

The briefing is usually delivered in either 2 hours or 3 hours, but clearly more information and explanation can be put across in a 3 hours session. It can be run in your own conference or training facility or at a commercial conference venue. Shorter presentations can be provided where there are greater pressures on time, but of course content is further reduced.

The standard of project management in my company directly affects the bottom line.
